REVIEW PROCESS

Town Ordinance requires variances to go through the public hearing process (Planning Commission and Town Council). Once a completed application packet is submitted to the Town, it is sent out to review to applicable agencies including but not limited to Planning & Zoning, Engineering, Public Works, Legal, and the Fire Department. Should a professional review be required and contracted outside of Town Departments the review fee will be passed onto the applicant. Staff will schedule complete applications on a first come, first serve basis, during the building season you may have wait until the next month if the agenda is full.(estimated time frame assuming complete materials and no major issues : 2 months). Applicants or their agent must attend the Planning & Zoning Commission meeting and the Town Council meeting or the application will not be heard by the boards. Although Town Council may approve your application, you may not exercise the variance until you have been issued a permit.

VALIDITY

The permit is considered null and void if the variance has not been established within 1 year of permit issuance.

SITE PLAN CHECK LIST (if applicable)

Site plans should be prepared (but it is not required) by a design professional to ensure accuracy, limit liability to the property owner, and have professional depiction of your property investment.
